DEL FRISCO'S GRILLE

3232 McKinney Ave.
972.807.6152; delfriscosgrille.com

Keys to the Door: Del Frisco's Restaurant Group chief executive officer Mark Medanksy, executive chef Aaron Henschen, general manager Sabrina Scully.

Playing Favorites: You've pored over a 16-ounce prime rib and a perfectly aged pinot noir in one of the quiet corner tables at Del Frisco's Double Eagle Steak House. Now allow us to introduce you to the eatery's less-formal sibling — think less Niles and Frasier Crane and more MaryKate and Ashley Olsen. The second-ever Del Frisco's Grille has oh-so-coolly consumed 8,300 square feet and two levels within the newly spruced 15-story office tower at One McKinney Plaza at Hall Street. (The first Grille opened earlier this year in New York's Rockefeller Center.) When you go, expect air kisses galore, as this lively, dual-bar spot caters to the social butterflies who just love to meet and greet. The must-try bites? Order the grilled ahi tuna tacos with a spicy citrus mayonnaise, then move on to one of Del Frisco's hearty steaks. So the big question becomes: the groovier Grille or the sophisticated Steak House? It all depends on your mood — but who doesn't love a good sibling rivalry. Lauren Mang
